Oriental Rugs

20 per cent. under the marked price

Good news this morning from our Rug department. Oriental Rugs at a decided reduction from regular prices.

Once a year, for a limited period only, we offer our Oriental Rugs at a decided reduction from regular prices.

As you well know, we never mark any fictitious values or prices on our Rugs consequently the normal prices are always lower than those of other stores.

Deduct 20 Per Cent. To-Day from the plainly marked price of each Rug, and you have the amount it will now cost you.

Housekeepers moving into new homes, refurnishing old ones, or people looking for the best kind of Christmas presents, will appreciate this offering.

For example, a Rug that is marked $30.00 will cost you but $24.00 during the sale.

The 20 per cent, reduction applies to all Oriental Rugs, with the exception of the large carpet sizes, on which the reduction

HISTORY OF THE UNION BANK CASE.

Ju 1891 the town of Oxford N. C. 1995.

CASE.

In 1891 the town of Oxford, N. C., was authorized to issue $30,000 bonds to aid in the construction of the Oxford and East Coast Railroad. A compromise was reached in the case, by which the town was to issue only $20,000. The bonds were turned over to the railroad, who, in turn, sold them to the Union Bank. The iown paid the first coupin in 1893, but defaulted in the payment of the second one. The bank then sued the town of Oxford, and the town raised the point that when the act authorizing the issue of the honds passed the Logislature of North Carolina it was not read in the House of Representitives on three different days, as the Constitution of that State required, but passed its second and third reading on the same day, and the yeas and nays were not entered on the journal on the second and third reading, as required by the Constitution. The lower court overruled the defense, and gave judgment against the town, but on appeal to this court that judgment was reversed and the case was sent back for a new trial. When it came back the bank suffered a non-suit, and brought an

IRICHMOND May LOSE COLLEGE

Lynchburg, Charlottesville and Bristol Bidding for Great Baptist School.

MATTER SOON TO BE DECIDED

Report of Education Commission Will Be Discussed This Week at Charlottesville.

On the eve of the session of the Baptist General Association of Virginia when important events shaping the future of the denomination's educational work in the State are likely to occure Richmond stands in imminent danger of sinking to a secondary place in a great system of girls' schools expected in the course of time to make its influence felt through all the South. It has long been the talk of Virginia Baptists to found a central woman's college, sufficiently endowed and thoroughly equipped that will be the nucleus of a group scattered over the entire State. With a calm assurance that has had about the same effect as utter neglect, Richmond has apparently taken it for granted that ner position as the natural center of denominational activity in Virginia isounassailable, and that the school will necessarily come to this city whether any effort is made to secure it or not. There has been a good deal of mild discussion, and not a little self-congratulation at the prospect of an imcongratulation at the prospect of an important addition to the imposing roll of educational institutions located here, but nothing came of it but talk. No proposition was made and not a single inducement has been offered.

Meanwhile three other Virginia cities have been quietly at work, with the result that the chances of any one of the three are to-day better than those of Richmond. Bristol. Charlottesville and

Lynchburg are clamoring for the colge, the business men uniting with the lege, the business men uniting with the Baptists themselves in making it advantageous to the association to select the particular location they advocate. An effort will likely be made to force the issue at the meeting which begins this week, and if this effort is successful Eristol or Charlottesville will in all probability walk off with the prize. Richmond will be strongly advocated, notwithstanding her feilure to connete, but withstanding her failure to compete, but the powerful opposition with which this movement will be met, unless the city

Precise Situation. The precise situation in the education commission which under the supervision of the association is directing the work of co-ordinating the Baptist schools of the State, was revealed for the first time yesterday by a member of the body who will have a weighty influence in shaping will have a weighty intended in snapsing the report to be made. The commission has held a number of sessions and will meet again Thursday in Charlottesville, where the association will assemide. Un-der the instructions of the association The commission has directed its first efforts to plans for lifting the debts on the Baptist schools of the State, but its time has also been largely devoted to a consideration of the co-ordination scheme with more particular reference to the proposed new woman's college.

It may be stated positively that several members of the commission, perhaps a majority, are in favor of settling the question of the location of the college at this session of the association, and that they will endeavor to go to the body this week with a report piedging the Baptists to locate the school in Richmond,s gratter will come up at the meeting with more particular reference to the matter will come up at the meeting Thursday, and will be threshed out with met there. All of this is bascul upon the assumption that Richmond continues inert. The city could turn the tide and casily outs all competitors if it made a satisfactory proposition, and the school

The fight will occur; right here. The commission, it is learned, has asked for comnetitive bids. Lynchburg has offered time, one as an inducement, and Charlottes-wille the Rowlings Institute property and t subscription amounting to about $25,000. "It will be absurd," said a member of the commission yesterday, "to ask for competitive bids and then award the school to a city that did not compete. You can readily see what an effect this would have upon the oter cities. They would retire in disgust. Personally, I want to see the school in Richmond, but if the matter comes up in the association without any offer from this city, I shall oppose its location here. "It has been suggested to us that we select Richmond and use the Woman's College here as a foundation for the new school. The Woman's College is not big enough to hold the pupils it has now. We must have a new college, with large buildings, thoroughly equipped, and in a more suitable location, with extensive grounds. It will take at least $250,000 to start such a college, and we will make it the greatt college, and we will make it the great est school of its kind in the South. the Capitol Building.

The plank fence was removed from around the State Capitol building yesterday, the exterior of the splendid structure having now been practically completed, and the debris lieident to the work will be rapidly cleaned away. The public looked upon the broad and beautiful from steps yesterday for the first time, and hundreds of pedestrians walked around the entire building and gazed in wonderment upon its massive pillars and commanding outer walls. Nearly every one admires the building, and it seems to be the concensus of opinion that when completed it will be one of the most beautiful and convenient State houses in the South.

There is no grass left within the space where the fence was, and as soon as an appropriation is made by the Legislature the grounds will be improved and beautifued in conformity with the new building.

Richmond Trade Report.

Richmond Trade Report.

In nearly all lines of trade sales for October were better than for the previous month, and considerably better than for the same month last year, with orders for the present month holding up well. In harness and saddlery, and in most lines in which leather is used, prices are much higher and show advancing tendencies. Tobacco sales on exchange have closed for the present year, but loose leaf sales continue and receipts are heavy. Sales the past week were about 750,000 pounds. Unfavorable conditions for handling tobacco have now checked trade temporarily. Prices for the finer grades of lobacco are not so high in proportion as for the common grades, and the majority of sales have been of the latter class, prices avernging about six cents. Collections are very good, showing an improvement, though for a few days during the latter part of October, when cetton went below ten cents, there was a falling off until that stuple recovered again.
